Category:Productivity Category:Microsoft Office-related software Category:Utilities for macOS[Validation of a multimodality questionnaire: an instrument for the evaluation of psychosomatic rehabilitation]. The aim of this study is to analyze the validity and reliability of the health status scale (HSS) questionnaire in a group of patients affected by chronic diseases. The HSS questionnaire is based on the Functional Living Index-Elderly (FLIE), assessing health-related quality of life for older patients. Twenty-two patients with ages ranging from 60 to 87 years, treated at the Centro Medico S. Giovanni di Dio, Vatican City, Italy, were enrolled in the study. The scale consists of 5 health-related dimensions: fatigue, mental tension, discomfort, daily activities, and mental cognition. The subjects were given the HSS questionnaire twice to be answered. The results of the HSS questionnaire were compared to the medical examination and also to the data of the clinical staff. The comparison with other scales and medical examination revealed a high level of agreement (high statistical significance). The internal consistency reliability (Cronbach alpha) of the HSS questionnaire and the FLIE was found to be equal to 0.80 and 0.86, respectively. The agreement with the medical examination and the high level of internal consistency reliability suggest that the HSS questionnaire is an adequate instrument to evaluate the effect of psychosomatic rehabilitation in older patients affected by chronic diseases. The present invention relates to tape player apparatus for playing a multi-track magnetic tape having a series of synchronous servo tracks, and in particular to a servo track writing system for writing servo patterns into these tracks. The present invention is especially suited for use with a reproducing head transducer which is equipped with a magnetic preamplifier but it will be appreciated that it may be used with
