The "Markov model" for AIDS deaths predicts mortality at the end of any given time period by applying the probability of dying from AIDS during a past period of observation to an estimated number of persons remaining alive at that point. This study evaluated the method's performance by comparing predictions of AIDS deaths in 1990 for the United States, for the past year, to actual counts for 1990 and 1985-1989. The results indicate that 1) in 1990, the method is as accurate as alternative analyses of U.S. AIDS data which have been previously published and use a number of different modeling techniques, 2) a comparable degree of accuracy could be obtained if data for 1985-1989 were taken into account in the model, and 3) additional data would need to be used for 1990 to further improve the method's accuracy.Kyôto Gakuen Ecological Park is a botanical garden located in Aoba-ku, Kobe, Hyôgo Prefecture, Japan.
